

Nelson Rowing Club Scholarship Fund

Supporting the Fund

The NRC Scholarship Fund was established in recognition of Jack Collin; outstanding contribution to rowing and his lifelong commitment to helping young athletes participate, develop, and succeed in the sport. Throughout his many years of service to the rowing community, Jack understood that financial barriers can prevent talented and dedicated rowers from reaching their full potential. His vision was that no athlete should miss opportunities simply because of the cost of participation.

The Fund exists to provide financial assistance to Nelson Rowing Club members who demonstrate commitment, potential, and a genuine need for support. Assistance may be used towards club fees, regatta expenses, equipment, training camps, travel, and other rowing-related costs that enable athletes to continue their rowing journey.

The Scholarship Fund has been made possible through the generosity of donations received from individuals, families, businesses, and supporters of rowing who believe in investing in young people and the future of our sport. Every contribution, regardless of size, directly assists rowers to remain involved, pursue excellence, and represent their club and community with pride.

As the cost of participation in sport continues to rise, the need for scholarship support becomes increasingly important. We invite members of the rowing community, alumni, local businesses, philanthropic organisations, and supporters of youth development to consider contributing to the NRC Scholarship Fund.

Your donation can make a lasting difference by helping a young rower access opportunities they may otherwise be unable to afford. A contribution to the Fund is more than a financial gift. It is an investment in the development of young people, the strength of Nelson Rowing Club, and the future success of rowing in our region.
