Climate Leadership Development Programme

Designed for organisational leaders and teams who recognise the importance of climate change and want to strengthen their ability to lead strategic, climate-aligned change.

Programme focus areas include

- Essential climate science for business leaders.
- Assessing risk and opportunity.
- Aligning organisational purpose and values with climate action.
- Leading climate initiatives within your organisation.
- Navigating the path from status quo to innovation to visionary.
- Incremental vs. transformational change.
- Climate leadership as change leadership.
- License to operate, transparency, and greenwashing.
- Developing and setting effective climate strategy.

Who should attend

Research shows that effective climate leadership is distributed across an organisation. We recommend attending as a climate leadership team, including one or two senior leaders and a couple of operational leaders who understand how to 'get stuff done around here'.

Programme structure

Six half-day in-person workshops, one per month running Feb '26 - July '26.

Programme Investment

Individual Ticket	$1,500 + GST
Group Rate (PP)	$1,400 + GST
Gallagher Client Ticket	$750 + GST

Programme Starts

Friday 13th February 2026, 9am - 12pm

About the presenter

Jon Lasenby is leadership consultant zooming in to the specific challenges of developing climate responsiveness in organisational leaders. After six successful years establishing a consultancy in Whakatū Nelson, Maranga Ltd., Jon is now completing a Doctorate in Climate Leadership to build the specialist knowledge and the research base to lead in this emerging field.

As leaders, Jon believes we have a responsibility to shape our organisations so they leave the planet thriving and abundant for our children and their children to enjoy. How we do that is not straightforward, but it is crucial.

Supported by Gallagher Insurance New Zealand

Gallagher Insurance believes sustainability is about how we protect New Zealand's future. As a company that aspires to be environmentally restorative, socially just and economically inclusive, they recognize that developing strong climate leadership is essential for creating resilient communities and economies. Gallagher's offer a 50% subsidy for their clients to attend this course.
